

WEAR IT WILD

© naturepl.com / Edwin Giesbers / WWF

ANIMAL CROSSWORD

Answer these questions to complete the crossword!

Horizontal

3. This Australian marsupial poops in cubes!
5. This bear is famous for its unique markings. It's native to China and eats up to 12.5kg of bamboo every day!
7. This marsupial is found in trees at night? Hint a famous fictional character of this species was magic
9. There are 7 species of this majestic reptile. Swimming in the ocean since the time of the dinosaurs, these animals lay their eggs on shore, but spend their lives at sea.

Vertical

1. This animal is the largest living creature on earth!
2. This native Australian marsupial lives on a diet of eucalyptus leaves.
4. One of the world's most unique animals, this fuzzy egg-laying mammal lives in freshwater systems on Australia's east coast.
6. This carnivorous marsupial has a pointed nose, a bushy tail, and is covered in white spots. Hint: there's one on this page!
8. This stripey marsupial's favourite food is termites! It's also the animal emblem for Western Australia, the only state this animal can be found in.

© Georgina Sneyler / WWF

WEAR IT WILD

©naturepl.com / Edwin Giesbers / WWF

ANIMAL CROSSWORD

ANSWER SHEET

Horizontal

3. This Australian marsupial poops in cubes!
5. This bear is famous for its unique markings. It's native to China and eats up to 12.5kg of bamboo every day!
7. This marsupial is found in trees at night? Hint a famous fictional character of this species was magic.
9. There are 7 species of this majestic reptile. Swimming in the ocean since the time of the dinosaurs, these animals lay their eggs on shore, but spend their lives at sea.

Vertical

1. This animal is the largest living creature on earth!
2. This native Australian marsupial lives on a diet of eucalyptus leaves.
4. One of the world's most unique animals, this fuzzy egg-laying mammal lives in freshwater systems on Australia's east coast.
6. This carnivorous marsupial has a pointed nose, a bushy tail, and is covered in white spots. Hint: there's one on this page!
8. This stripey marsupial's favourite food is termites! It's also the animal emblem for Western Australia, the only state this animal can be found in.

